FUSIA Communications

Whereas: On this day, July 10, 2015, the friends, staff, students, and supporters of FUSIA Communications gather in celebration of the 2015 Recognition Ceremony; and

Whereas: FUSIA Communications aims to help exchange visitors from Asia gain greater insight into American culture. It also assists U.S. organizations in connecting with the international community. Participants in FUSIA Communications gain an enhanced cultural mindset and are able to engage in a multitude of enriching activities, including volunteering and visiting landmarks; and

Whereas: FUSIA Communications is affiliated with nine universities in Asia that support the need for young professionals to obtain the skills and cultural understanding that are necessary for the future. At FUSIA Communications, students intern in a variety of fields, including accounting, advertising, art, engineering, government, home furnishing, insurance brokerage, law, media, nonprofit, real estate, technology, and transportation; and

Whereas: FUSIA Communications is the recipient of the Spirit Award, a Mets-affiliated award that acknowledges programs that seek to increase cooperation, hard work, and cultural exchange. Under the outstanding leadership of Founder and Responsible Officer Elizabeth Kay, and Program Adviser Marc A. Haken, FUSIA Communications has provided amazing opportunities for young professionals to pursue their career goals; and

Whereas: FUSIA Communications has truly shown its commitment to fostering cultural exchange and supporting the success of students.

Therefore, I, Grace Meng, Member of Congress representing the Sixth Congressional District, hold up FUSIA Communications for great recognition and honor and declare today to be "FUSIA Communications Day" throughout the Sixth Congressional District.
