“Cross Cultural Internship Program”

- Whereas: The Cross Cultural Internship Program (CCIP) has been in existence for seven years and is a self-funded social enterprise. This program, based in Flushing, NY, has helped over eight-hundred students from diverse backgrounds gain a greater cultural understanding; and...
- Whereas: Encompassing nine universities in Asia and 25 host organizations in the United States, CCIP, organized by FUSIA Communications, Inc., aims to provide a cultural gateway between students in Asia and a wealth of organizations in the United States. CCIP offers resources and support to students who are passionate about becoming significant contributors to the global economy; and...
- Whereas: With collaborative efforts in Hong Kong, Singapore, Macau, New York, and New Jersey, CCIP creates a network that promotes international communication allowing US companies to maintain awareness of changes in the global marketplace. The program is a part of the US State Department Exchange Visitor Program’s cultural initiative and has created a lasting impact for students and participating organizations in New York City; and...
- Whereas: The CCIP goodwill cultural initiative has garnered accolades such as the Spirit Award, a recognition that celebrates deeds exemplifying a spirit of mutual aid and hard work. This East-West exchange program immerses students in one of the most culturally diverse neighborhoods in the world, creating an ideal and unique environment for learning; be it therefore...
- Proclaimed: On this 10th day of July, 2015, by the power incumbent in me as the duly elected Member of the House of Representatives from New York’s 14th Congressional District, I bestow Congressional Recognition upon
