"The Cross Cultural Internship Program"

Whereas:

The Cross Cultural Internship Program is a self-funded social enterprise internship program organized by FUSIA Communications that promotes international cultural exchange and relations. This program is located in Flushing, New York, and has been successful in connecting an increasing amount of Asian students to American workspaces; and...

Whereas:

For fourteen years, FUSIA Communications has created and maintained resources that offer students not just an educational experience, but a transcultural collaboration to strengthen the relationship between the U.S. and the nations of Asia and the Pacific Regions. This shows FUSIA Communications' dedication to holding diversity, education, administration, teamwork, and professionalism in high regard; and...

Whereas:

This year, 74 students will take part in the program where they will obtain structured and guided work-based experience. They will intern at one of the participating host organizations located in the New York City area and have the chance to be immersed in the unique New York City culture; and...

Whereas:

Today, The Cross Cultural internship Program has brought together all the individuals and organizations who have contributed to its initiative through the 2017 Recognition Ceremony. The ceremony celebrates the achievements of the participants and the students' ability to simultaneously adapt and enhance their skills; be it therefore...
